

The Strength Of A Bank

OVER one hundred and five years ago the Bank of Montreal was established with a single office and a capital of $350,000.

Today, after more than a century of conservative progress, the combined capital and reserve of the Bank amount to $54,500,000, its total assets are in excess of $650,000,000, its six hundred Branches extend to all parts of Canada, and it has its own offices in financial centres throughout the world.

THE STONE MOUNTAIN CONFEDERATE MEMORIAL

Guiton Borglum, the noted sculptor, commenced actual work on the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial on Monday, June 18, with impressive ceremonies arranged in honor of the occasion by the Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial Association, which has charge of the great undertaking.

Since that time, 5,000 holes have been drilled in the granite precipice in preparation for "roughing out" the figure of General Robert E. Lee, the central figure in the central group to be carved in stupendous proportions on the face of the mountain.

Work will go forward on the Memorial rapidly. Atlanta has been asked to raise $250,000, and this amount is nearing completion. It will pay for the central group as Atlanta's contribution to the Memorial. Georgia's quota of $250,000 will be raised immediately following Atlanta's quota; then the other Southern States and the Nation at large will be asked to subscribe. The cost of the entire memorial group when finished will be approximately $3,000,000.

It would be possible to carve the whole panorama across the mountain by lowering stone cutters and sculptors on steel cable to do their work, but this would require a lifetime of more. Machinery has been designed, and is now being built by the Brown Hauling Machinery Company, of Cleveland, which will speed up the work as rapidly as all big construction projects are speeded up by the use of big machinery. It was through the efforts of Lester P. Barlow, a brilliant young engineer of Cleveland and a personal friend of Mr. Borglum, that a group of the best stone workers of the country consolidated their efforts in working out this work. The whole machinery, representing a cost of something like $250,000, will be donated to the Memorial.

This machinery is now nearing completion in the Brown Hauling Machinery Company's works in Cleveland, and will soon be ready for shipment. When the Association's funds are sufficient to install and operate the machinery in full blast, it will place on the precipice a battery of fifteen pneumatic drills with an aggregate cutting capacity per hour of about one inch wide, twelve inches deep, and sixteen feet long. Such rapid cutting will make it possible to remove bulk stone in large quantities at high speed, and the sculptor will follow with his rough carving and then the finishing carving. Within six years, according to careful calculations made by Mr. Borglum and the engineering staff, the entire panorama can be completed.

The central group of figures alone, if nothing else were added to them, would make a monument unequalled in ancient or modern times, but they are only the beginning of a plan so vast that its magnitude and grandeur have been heralded in every country. In the central group will be Robert E. Lee, Jefferson Davis, Stonewall Jackson, and three of four other figures yet to be selected, these being the principal military figures of the Confederacy.

But when they have been carved, the great Memorial will be just begun, for the plan is not to stop with the central group. It is proposed to carve the whole vast sweep of the granite precipice as the background of a granite picture of an army of about a thousand feet. An awe-inspiring wall Mr. Borglum and his army of assistants will carve a panorama extending a distance of eleven hundred feet and a width of two hundred feet, giving the effect when finished of an army marching over and across and down the mountain.

SEVEN YEARS OF TORTURE

Headaches and Indigestion Ended By "Fruit-a-lives"

The Marvellous Fruit Medicine

Like thousands and thousands of other sufferers, Mr. Albert Varner of Buckingham, P.Q., tried many remedies and went to doctors and specialists; but nothing did him any good.

Finally a friend advised him to try "Fruit-a-lives"—now he is well. As he says in a letter:

"For seven years, I suffered terribly from Headaches and Indigestion. I had belching gas, bitter stuff would come up in my mouth, and I was very nervous. I was terribly constipated. I took Fruit-a-lives and this great fruit medicine made me well. I am now 60, a box, 6 for $2.50. At dealers or sent by mail. Limited, Ottawa, Ont."

will swing over the mountain, straining to hold back, as they pitch off the cliff. The left side of the central group will be carved a granite picture of the army on the march, stretching off toward the horizon, the precipice in the distance, the soldiers leaning forward as if eager for battle.

Interpersed among artillery, cavalry, and infantry will be noted Confederate units, the famous 22nd and 24th divisions, five from each Confederate State, selected by appropriate committees in those States.

In sheer magnitude the central group alone, as stated above, has no parallel among all the monuments of ancient or modern history. There is nothing in any age which can be compared with the figures of Robert E. Lee on his famous war horse, Traveller, will stand on the precipice, among two hundred feet from the crown of his hat to the horse's hoofs. Some idea of the stupendous proportions of this figure may be imagined from a comparison with the height of the seventeen-story Capital Building, tallest of Atlanta skyscrapers. The figure of General Lee will be about as high as this building.

All other figures in the whole panorama will be in similar scale. The face of Stone Mountain presents a background so vast that figures on a scale of less magnitude would seem insignificant. A man suspended by a steel cable on the figure of General Lee painted in outline on the precipice looks about as large as a butterfly on a horse.

A man of less resolution and courage than Guiton Borglum would have surrendered to the problems and difficulties confronting him in his plan to carve a panorama on Stone Mountain. The world has heard much of the magnitude and grandeur of the project, but the obstacles which have been overcome it has heard little.

It was necessary to blaze new trails from the very beginning. One problem seemed hopeless of solution—to place on the precipice an outline of the figures. This problem was solved by the giant projection lantern. Mr. Borglum, in the study of the central group, made in his studio in Hartford, Connecticut, was photographed. A print of the photograph was made on a lantern slide. The lantern shined clearly and distinctly from the studio onto the face of the mountain to the vast black wall looming in the darkness 800 feet away. Then a silhouette was made in black lines of the central group figures and this was placed on a slide, and the lantern projected the figures with clearness. Men with buckets of paint and brushes were let down the precipice on cables in the darkness, and painted the lines in white; and there they stood at dawn—a perfect pattern!

Now the panorama will be chiseled out of the solid granite a temple of stone to be known as Memorial Hall, in which to preserve for future generations the relics of the Southern Confederacy. Across the front of Memorial Hall will be twelve windows and the same stone extending over a half a mile in width.

The mountain is a solid monolith of granite, the largest rock in the world. The doming mass is apparently formed of varying thicknesses, remarkably uniform in color, texture and composition. The mountain lies sixteen miles east of Atlanta, situated on a level plateau 2,000 feet above sea level. It covers an area of about two square miles, and contains 7,000,000 cubic feet of dark granite. It measures seven miles in circumference around the base, and rises to an altitude of 867 feet above the surrounding country. On the north side the rise is almost perpendicular, and on this surface the great Memorial will be carved.

Hay—All hay prices quoted lower and demand very slow; dealers buying at country points, 10c to 12c; alfalfa, $11 and $12; cannot move much; Washington and B.C. hay offering hay cheap.

Potatoes—Fair supplies of new Albertas bring 10c per bushel at city markets with crop in prospect; market outlook bad. Hides—Buyers say the tanners are stocked up on hides and will not buy; prices very low and no immediate sign of improvement. Green salted hides at country points, 4c; kip, 5c; and calf, 6c.

Wool—Manufacturers not buying and dealers say stocks hard to move, especially coarse grades. Calgary deliveries, fine wool, 20c to 22c. Fur—Business quiet; fall auctions start soon; Winnipeg about middle of August, Montreal next month, then New York.

APPARENT CANCER CURE DISCOVERED

Kansas Surgeon Declares a Liverpot Man Has Solved Problem.

New York May 22.—An apparent cure for cancer, consisting of a solution of colloidal lead, which is an enemy of diseased tissues, has been discovered by Prof. Blair Bell, of Liverpool university, according to Dr. L. E. Houghay, of Concordia, Kansas, who returned on the President Adams after studying surgery abroad for several years.

Dr. Bell, professor of gynecology, spent 18 years in developing the cure, said Dr. Houghay, who added that during the last year Dr. Bell treated more than 50 cancer cases and in none of these did the disease return. The cure has not been known to the world because of Dr. Bell's reticence and his desire to treat more cases before making it generally known.

Historical Research for The Dominion

Wm. Webber, Montreal, Marquis of Sligo, Captain E. Griffiths, R.N.R., "Empress of France," Marchioness of Sligo.

AFTER a two-year holiday, completing a pilgrimage of 46,000 miles on Canadian Pacific railway and steamships, the Marquis and Marchioness of Sligo returned to their London home. During their stay in the Western Hemisphere, the Irish peer diverted from his main course of travel, visiting all the leading republics of South America and in the latter days of his travel diverted his course to Southern China, where he narrowly escaped by some few minutes being taken by bandits.

Prior to his departure on the S.S. "Empress of France," the distinguished visitor forwarded to the Canadian Government an interesting document found in the Sligo family correspondence, being a letter from the Hon. Henry Browne, who was associated with the capture of Quebec.

For some time past, the Marquis has been occupied in gathering data about his family and the part they played in the history of Canada and the Dominion as a result of his research. The Marquis began his research with the famous picture of the death of Wolfe, by West, and after careful investigation he has succeeded in identifying a number of the individuals who surrounded the famous battle of the Marquis. His ancestor helped to carry the standard off the battlefield after he had died.

MR. SAPIRO, THE NEWSPAPERS AND THE PREMIER

The coming to Alberta of Mr. Aaron Sapiro, the authority on farming co-operation, has given occasion for a somewhat bitter controversy between Mr. Greenfield, the Premier, and some of his lieutenants on the one side, and the Calgary Herald and Edmonton Journal on the other. The Herald has published correspondence between its managing editor and Mr. Wood of the U. P. A. and the Government. Judging from that correspondence so published it is difficult to see what possible ground for complaint Mr. Wood can have. The Herald suggested offering Mr. Sapiro to Alberta and bringing to pay the expense. Mr. Wood replied that this was an excellent idea, and that the Alberta Government itself hoped to bring Mr. Sapiro, and promised to attend the Herald of the result of the attempt. So much information having reached the newspapers, they decided to move on their own responsibility, and they have succeeded in bringing Mr. Sapiro here. Then Mr. Wood refused to co-operate, and the Premier launches a charge of bad faith at the two papers. On the surface, at any rate, it looks as if the Government had thought, talked and hesitated over what seemed like a promising scheme, while the newspapers had first talked and then acted in view of the Government's inaction. It would seem as though the Government and the U. P. A. might well have been grateful to the newspapers instead of attacking them. If, as is stated, the Government and the U. P. A. thought that Mr. Sapiro might usefully be brought here, why should they complain when he is so brought without any expense to the U. P. A. or the public? Are they annoyed because they themselves have not resorted to the credit for a practical move to help the farmers whom they profess to help? Did they alone want to be allowed to stage the conference and direct its course? Would be surprising and a matter for regret if the Premier were really guilty of such a comparatively petty attitude. Hitherto he has always been regarded as a man honestly anxious to put the public welfare before the advantage of his own party. He has been inclined to regard the failure of his government to do anything but pass trivial and sometimes annoying acts or amendments to acts and appoint new officials, while leaving unimproved the crucial questions of provincial credit or the farmers' marketing arrangements. If sincerity of purpose ceases to be a recognized asset of the government, it will have very little else left in the way of assets, and since there is visible at present no respectable alternative government, provincial politics may be in a bad way. On the information presently available about this controversy, it would seem that the better course would have been to accept gladly the fact that Mr. Sapiro is actually here and try to make the best possible use of his coming without complaining as to the manner of it. For the moment the advantage in this dispute lies with the newspapers and not with the Government.

THE LATE PRESIDENT HARDING

It was only a few days ago that all of Canada was welcoming the visit of President Harding to Vancouver. The news of his sudden death has been received with deep regret all over Canada and the British Empire, as well as in his own country. So far as can be judged by those outside the United States, the late President was a man whose outstanding characteristics were unpretentious common-sense and sanity. His policies and his actions in office were sane and sane. He was a man of a quality of business-like sobriety and clearness, which was in evidence in all that he did. His predecessor, Mr. Wilson, was not so great a success.

not succeed to any great extent. The elaborate machinery of a great state breaks down, as it is breaking down in Germany, primitive instincts tend to assert themselves. If the city mobs cannot buy food, they will take it by force. If the farmers cannot get paid for their produce in the ordinary way, they will keep their produce on the farms and let the cities starve. When men starve they are apt to revert to savagery. This is what happened and is still happening in Russia. That is what many in and out of Germany are beginning with dread to anticipate. None can say confidently in what way present tendencies will develop. Germany is not Russia. The Germans are one of the best educated, most highly organized and disciplined races in the world. It is likely that their leaders have to some extent foreseen the present happenings, and have laid their plans accordingly, but there are sharp divisions of class and opinion in Germany. The old military and aristocratic party are wholly hostile to the moderate republicans now nominally in power. The Communists are the bitter enemies of both. There is ample evidence that the Soviet Government of Russia is intriguing in Germany ready to take advantage of any disturbances there. The natural tendency of Germany in her time of distress is to turn to Russia as the enemy of Britain, France and Poland. Acting together, these two might again set Europe in a blaze, if they could get the material means of doing so.

There is no reason to be in the least sorry for Germany. She is reaping what she sowed, and if the result of the harvest is to leave the Germans nothing but their eyes in sleep with it, it will be only what their national hero Bismarck, who left the French in 1871. The danger is that if Germany lapses into a chaos like that of Russia and China, it will be in a condition of anarchy. The consequences for the rest of the world, if only from the standpoint of trade, must inevitably be serious. Yet it seems as if nothing can be done but to look on and watch events take their course.

very well for the Council and citizens of Red Deer to start now to make the necessary arrangements so that they may get power from the Province at the first possible moment. If there is one thing more than another that has prevented and still prevents the rapid growth and development of this city, it is the exorbitant cost of power to prospective industries.

The wage-earner in the United States, and the same conditions apply in Canada, are better off today than they have ever been. Up to this year, 1920 was the high mark, but since then wages have risen far out of proportion to living expenses. This condition will seem to many to be ideal, but it is our opinion that it is forcing out of business and often into bankruptcy, the smaller industries and businesses, and that will only tend to strengthen the large companies who control oil, coal, steel and other necessities.

The Department of Agriculture has just completed a unique advertising venture, the expression of which has been sent to the Canadian farmers. It has noticed the prevalent reports spread throughout the country and has decided to publish a series of advertisements in the papers. The failure of the campaign will be a great loss to the farmers, and all of us are poorer for it. The Department of Agriculture has been spread about concerning the farmer of Canada and agricultural possibilities on this side of the line.

We feel it our duty as a journal to publish the news at all times, as great regard for the truth as it is possible. There is no place in it for the expression of opinion by the paper other than in the editorial columns. In these columns we have the first statement of the province and the world, and if we aim too high, we harm no one but ourselves. The same time we believe in making the best possible use of the present and the past events in the light of our own day and the future. That is our view of journalism.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Provincial Government will apply to the Federal Government for concessions for developing the power from the Spray lake in the national park. If it gets the concessions it will proceed at once to develop the power. The work would be done in five years but it is estimated that the revenue from Calgary alone would pay overhead charges. It would be a great benefit to the province.

GOOD MONEY IN GOOD FARMING

"Let's Get to Work and Pay Off the Mortgage"

NINE years ago Canada's national debt was about one-third of a billion. It is more than two and one-third billions today.

Our debts have greatly increased—our revenues must also go up. The farmer has to bear his share of the increased burden. That means he must increase his revenue.

Complaint has been heard that farmers under present conditions in Canada cannot make farming pay. And yet many thousands of Canadian farmers do make it pay.

How Is It Done?

Patient and industrious "carry on" will do wonders, but something more is needed. Too often "patient industry" is coupled with thoughtless methods, and in poorly planned farming.

Farmers today more than ever, must plan ahead, as well as "plug along"; indeed they have no option, if they wish to succeed.

Co-ordination of head and hand will mean real success. Farming in Canada has paid and pays now on many farms. It can be made to pay almost every farm. Canadian agriculture has passed through low profit-making years successfully in the past and can do so again.

Crop Returns Should be Increased

On the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa some crop costs and crop profits in 1922 as contrasted with all-Canada average crop costs and crop profits are given below. The all-Canada figures are in brackets.

	Cost per acre	Profit per acre
Hay	$21.13 ($13.50)	$11.21 ($5.09)
Corn for
Stock	$47.50 ($33.75)	$10.38 ($2.86)
Grain	$26.47 ($19.32)	$7.33 ($1.04)

Similar results can be shown from the Dominion Experimental Farm in every province.

Experimental Farm crops are sometimes claimed to be produced at too great cost. Thousands of experiments, however, show that increased cropping costs wisely applied up to a reasonable point always increase crop profits. This is true on the Experimental Farm—and on any and every farm.

Have Faith in Canada

Authorized for publication by the Dominion Department of Agriculture
W. R. MORTIMER, Minister.
Dr. J. H. GRISBALLE, Deputy Minister.

With the increased cost of production the higher standards of living now prevailing cannot be maintained by poor farm management. "Board" milkers, scrub beefs, poor quality hogs or non-productive herds.

The Farmer Must Manufacture

But crops alone are not enough. The farmer must change his crops into less bulky and more high priced products—milk, pork, beef, mutton, poultry, etc.

With fair yielding crops dairying shows good profits in Canada. The average cow has increased her yield 25% in the last ten years. She can quite readily go up another 25% and more, and there's where the profit lies. Better feeding, better selection and better breeding will do the job—feed, weed, breed.

To do better feeding means better pastures and more generous supplies of palatable roughage. Short rotations including clover and ensilage crops (corn, sunflower, pea and oat, etc.) will provide feed in abundance for both summer and winter. The experiments and investigations which the Dominion Department of Agriculture have carried on prove that farming scientifically and systematically undertaken will pay. The records and particulars of such work in every province are available to the Canadian farmer.

AMERICAN ALPINISTS MAKE FIRST ASCENTS OF PEAKS IN THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

Two of the highest peaks in Jasper National Park, Mount Unwin and Mount Brazeau, have just been climbed for the first time. The honor of making these first ascents has fallen to Mr. Howard Palmer, of New London, Conn., and Mr. Allen Carpe, of New York, men who have won international reputations as Alpine workers. It was Mr. Palmer who first ascended Mount Sir Sandford, the giant of the northern Selkirk. He is the vice-president of the American Alpine Club and a member of the Alpine Club of London. Mr. Carpe is a member of the American, Canadian and Swiss Alpine Clubs. Both are Fellows of the Royal Geographical Society.

BEARCHELL-CURR

A quiet wedding took place at St. Luke's church, Red Deer, on August 1, when Miss Christina Bearchell-Curr, youngest daughter of Mrs. S. M. Curr of Red Deer, became the bride of Mr. Walter Bearchell, formerly of Minnaburn, now a resident of Red Deer. Rev. Gerald McComas officiated. The bride traveled the church on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. A. H. Bearchell, who gave her away. She was charmingly attired in white satin, trimmed with crepe de chene, with veil crowned with orange blossoms, and carried a beautiful bouquet of pink English roses and ferns. Miss Jane Anderson was bridesmaid, and wore a pretty dress of blue and white, and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers. The groom was supported by his younger brother, Mr. Sidney Bearchell. After the ceremony the young couple and a few guests retired to the home of the groom's eldest sister, Mrs. A. H. Bearchell, where a wedding dinner was served. During the serious illness of their little nephew Albert Bearchell, the wedding was very quiet. Among the guests present was Mrs. Dick Blay, of Alta, formerly of Red Deer, an aunt of the groom.

MAKE FINE SHOWING

The object of the expedition, said Mr. Carpe, "was to explore the mountains between Maligne Lake and Mount Brazeau, particularly to locate and climb Mount Brazeau and to map the extensive Brazeau field. Mount Brazeau and Brazeau ice field were discovered. The Brazeau field was a vast territory of remarkable scenic beauty. Intervolved on their return to Jasper Park Lodge, they described the trip as one of the most interesting made in several years of mountaineering.

"The view from Mount Unwin was among the most expansive which we have ever seen, extending from Mount Fort in the south through the Columbia group, with Mount Brazeau and the Brazeau ice field, the Wood River and Hooker groups, Mount Brazeau and Cavell, the Fraser and Gellie groups to Mount Robson and Haskett in the north and the Brazeau range in the east. In the distance, Mount Sir Sandford and the Selkirk range, were clearly visible, and the ascent of Mount Brazeau and Cariboo ranges."

LIQUOR PLEBISCITE

What Prohibition Does

There is scarcely a community in the Province of Alberta that has not paid tribute to the boot-legging fraternity. The aggregate amount runs into millions annually. Many individuals engaged in boot-legging have made a profit exceeding $100,000 per year, and have not been convicted of violating the terms of the Alberta Liquor Act. Numbers of men and some women have left the Province of Alberta after two or three years operating as boot-leggers, and have become very wealthy thereby, who have never, at any time, contributed one dollar to the revenues of the province.

The efforts of the Alberta Government (and the loss to revenues by Prohibition) have been mainly responsible for the provincial deficit of 1922, which reached approximately $2,000,000 and a further large deficit was shown in the Provincial Budget for 1923.

The boot-legging fraternity are most enthusiastic supporters of Clause "A," by which means they hope to continue in the business, which has proved so lucrative. Will you vote to assist this fraternity to continue their ill-gotten gains, and increase the expenses of law administration, without raising the standard of law, order, and good government?

A vote for "A" is a vote in the interest of the boot-legger.

Did you ever stop to Think

The Commercial and Financial World, published in New York, has in its issue of July 21st the following:

Did you ever stop to think?.....

That with keen business competition prevailing, most business men are prone to increase their business by increased advertising.

That they realize that the people owe it to themselves and to their pocketbooks to read advertisements.

That the thrifty people read the advertising columns because it is a business proposition to do so. Advertise.

That advertised goods are best by test, they protect the buyer. Advertise.

That the merchant who builds his business by advertising, quality and service, is the successful business man of today. Advertise.

That the consistent advertiser always keeps clean, up-to-date stocks. Advertise.

That if he had not lived up to his advertising and his business dealings he would not be in business today. Advertise.

That progressive business men are insuring the soundness of their future growth by advertising.

That it pays to be known as a live business man, they are judged by their advertising.

ON THE RIM OF THE KETTLE

The Wheeler homestead, the only section of land in miles and miles that had ever felt the touch of a plowshare, lay like a tiny brown patch on the great green cattle country. Wheeler and his sixteen-year-old son Travis found only the faintest of friends among the riders of the range; it was the cattle that could never become quite reconciled to the unusual sight of a man afoot. Of course the Wheelers did not always walk. Their custom was to keep at least one horse in the corral at night; the other horses had a dozen Texas cowboys to roam over where they so minded.

Early one summer morning, Travis found the corral gate wide open and not a horse in sight. It was a busy time, and immediately after breakfast he started out on foot in search of the truant animals. He took a fifteen foot rope with him, for he expected to catch one of the gentle horses when he had found the herd and to ride home, driving the others. By making a wide great toward the south he kept on high ground, and when he was more than two miles from home he saw six horses grazing in a meadow flat away to the west. There was a gray among them, and he felt sure that the herd was his own.

Between the boy and the horses was a huge hole known locally as the Big Kettle, or the Devil's Kettle. It covered several acres, and in some places its rough bottom was nearly a hundred feet below the level ground that surrounded it.

Travis had seen a few cattle that had gone scampering away at sight of him. As he skirted the south side of the big hole he saw half a dozen old cows with their calves in the scant shade of some stunted mesquites. The cows moved reluctantly away as he approached them, and it was then that he first caught sight of a wiry brown-and-white bull pawing in a shallow pool of water. He was in the attitude of running as range cattle usually do, the brute held his head and assumed a threatening attitude. He gave a raucous bellow as the boy came on.

Travis had no desire to dispute the way with the ugly-tempered beast; he backed off cautiously, resolved to give the bull a wide berth. Emboldened at seeing the object of his displeasure retreating, the bull became aggressive and trotted swiftly forward.

Taken by surprise, the boy forgot the advice that the cowboys had given him, and he made a dash for it. As the lumbering beast continued to advance Travis took to his heels. The wiry brown-and-white bull pawing in the shallow pool of water, he saw along the brink of the kettle hole, nowhere in sight was there a tree large enough to offer refuge. As he ran he could hear the rumble of rapidly galloping hoofs behind him.

The break at his left and a little way in front grew a bush scarcely larger than a man's wrist. When he heard the bull close upon him he swerved sharply, dropped to the ground and grasped the bush near the roots. He felt the rope swing and he knew that the bull was close behind him. He was in a bad way. The rope was caught in the bushes and he was hanging by a single strand. He was in a bad way. The rope was caught in the bushes and he was hanging by a single strand.

As Travis looked down into the deep hole he became aware of the danger that he was in. He was hanging by a single strand. He was in a bad way. The rope was caught in the bushes and he was hanging by a single strand. He was in a bad way. The rope was caught in the bushes and he was hanging by a single strand.

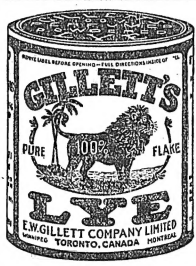

Finally the brute dropped heavily to his knees almost on the brink. The repeated jarring had loosened a part of the bank, which was dry and crumbly, and the animal had barely saved himself from going over as a mass of earth toppled for a moment and sent crashing downward. Travis was half buried by the falling dirt. Ducking his head, he clung to the slender sapling upon which he was perched. Then he heard the snapping of roots and felt himself settling.

When the avalanche had subsided and he had rubbed the dirt from his eyes what he saw made him gasp with horror. As the earth fell away it had exposed the main root of the bush, and the weight on it had caused it to split downward, so that now a branch with the thorns root scarcely as large as his thumb suspended him above the jagged bottom some sixty feet below. Moreover, like a strong bow, the bush and its roots had bent outward and downward till Travis was three or four feet from the top, and even farther below the level plain. He clung there against. He feared that the least movement would send him plunging into the sustaining rope. For a minute or two he waited. Nothing came, and his breathing became regular; his heart ceased to pound against his ribs.

More calmly he looked about him, searching for a way to help himself. He tried to keep perfectly still and think of a madoning task. He poured down his face, and the veins on his arms stood out like cords. He found himself gripping the sapling rigidly between his knees. He grew dizzy when he looked down, and he shut his eyes for a moment. The stillness was unbearable. He felt lonesome and began to shout. His voice sounded far away and came back in a sharp echo from the opposite wall of the big hole.

He thought that the early fall of the fighting bull would be a welcome sight. Then came an idea that brought him hope of escaping from his predicament. He began a long, drawn yodel, the salt call of the plains. Some of the cattle heard it, and lifting their heads, answered with a plaintive low.

Travis still had the rope looped over his shoulder. He carefully untied the red cotton handkerchief from round his neck and fastened it under the middle of the rope. Then with both ends in his right hand he began to throw the doubled rope upward to the bank above. Five or six times he threw it so that the red cloth lay for a moment on the ground before he drew it back.

He had almost despaired of attracting the attention of the cattle nearby when he heard a faint rumble overhead followed by a familiar bellow. Again he tossed the handkerchief upward, and the next moment he heard the dust-rimmed eyes of the fighting bull glaring down at him.

The beast tried to gore, but the red cloth and to stamp it with his hoofs. Down on his knees he dropped and snarled and roared impatiently with his horns six feet above the boy.

Trembling with uncertainty and fear, Travis began to put his daring plan into execution. He gripped the rope with his knees and legs, and balancing himself precariously, grasped one of the knotted ends of the rope in each hand. As the child swung a jumping rope he swung it behind him.

He had little chance to give his arms full play, but he leaned back slightly and, flinging them forward, he swung the rope upward. It struck a foot short of the brink.

His quick movement had started the earth crumbling again, and with this going on he watched the pile of dried clay as they cascaded off into space. But the large mass under the base of the rock, and after a few moments he felt safe enough to make another attempt. The effort might send him to destruction, but he determined to stake everything on one tremendous try. The bull, however, as if he had guessed the trick, was to be played on him, had backed away. Travis took his hat from his head and trotted swiftly forward.

Contrary to his calculations, it barely touched the brink, where it clung for an instant before it went sailing to the bottom of the great hole. The boy uttered an exclamation of despair, but the next instant he became alert. He felt the rope swing and he knew that the bull was close behind him. He was in a bad way. The rope was caught in the bushes and he was hanging by a single strand.

In his previous trial Travis had measured the swing of the rope, and he knew that his cramped position he could bring the looped middle barely as far as the animal's nose. It was a bad way. The rope was caught in the bushes and he was hanging by a single strand. He was in a bad way. The rope was caught in the bushes and he was hanging by a single strand.

As Travis brought his arms forward with all the strength and rapidity of which he was capable he threw his whole body upward and forward, and he knew that his cramped position he could bring the looped middle barely as far as the animal's nose. It was a bad way. The rope was caught in the bushes and he was hanging by a single strand.

The doubled rope sang through the air as it described a semi-circle. It passed the top of its swing, and he felt it descending; then his little bit of earth dropped from beneath him, and he felt his body shoot downward.

In the next second Travis felt first helplessness, then fear, then disgust, with himself, and finally as the rope tightened with a sudden jerk overwhelming joy. There was an instant of uncertainty as he hung there. He feared that the bull caught by the horns, would be pulled over, and that they would go down together. Then he felt himself shoot upward; he hung for an instant at the brink. His hands were skinned; his mouth and eyes were bleeding with dust and sand; but he held to the rope with grim desperation.

Like a sack of stones he was jerked over the rim to solid ground. Even then he retained his hold on the rope, and not until his shoulders came in violent contact with a prickly post did he release his grip. As he sat stiffly to his feet the rumble of retreating hoofs told him that the curiosity of the old bull had been satisfied, and that the creature no longer had any desire to fight.

C. N. R. READY FOR HARVEST

Winnipeg, August 6.—Hundreds of powerful engines and box cars, the aggregate length of which would cover many miles of siding, are being concentrated at strategic points throughout the prairie provinces, within easy reach of the great wheat belts along the lines of the Canadian National Railways in preparation for moving the 1923 crop. From present indications it is anticipated that the yield this year will be the heaviest in the history of Canada, and preparations are being made that the wheat once it commences moving toward the world markets.

All available box cars are being moved westward to points where they will be in demand once the flow of grain begins and additional power also is being gathered at western divisional points along the Canadian National. Engines which required attention before being placed in the heavy grain hauling service have been given the necessary overhauling and "tuning up" while box cars which required repairs have been given those repairs in rolling stock being placed in the grain hauling service. Much new rolling stock has been added to the Canadian National Railways equipment in preparation for the opening of grain shipment, and no stone has been left unturned in the effort to ensure that grain shall move forward without delay and without danger of blockades.

In addition to the preparation of equipment for the actual movement of grain eastward to the lake head or westward through the Pacific Coast outlet a new terminal has been completed at Neelburg, near Fort William, the operation of which will assist greatly in classifying and distributing cars of grain bound to the lake ports as well as general freight, whether east or west bound. The Neelburg Terminal with its 42 miles of track, which is in operation for the first time of the 1923 crop.

Preparation for the movement of a huge crop such as this year is prompted along the western lines of the Canadian National Railways, entails an immense amount of labour on the part of railway officials and this year has been no exception. Box cars and grain chutes are being distributed to all points, and no effort is being spared to secure the returns from foreign lines of Canadian National Railways cars which can be utilized for grain carrying.

With the opening of the grain movement all available Canadian National rolling stock will be pressed into service as required and effort will be maintained to have all empties sent back to prairie points for further grain carrying work. Now box cars, to the number of 1,000, have been ordered delivery in time for the grain movement and western shippers utilizing the services of the Canadian National Railways will find the executive and officials of that system ready to handle the 1923 crop in the business expeditiously in "The National Way."

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The regular monthly meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held at the home of Mrs. H. M. Trimble, Friday afternoon, July 27th.

After the devotional exercises and the business had been disposed of, Mrs. Houston, Spout, of Medical Contest work, took charge of the program. The meeting took the form of a reunion of old and new members, and letters of greeting were received from former members who have removed from Red Deer. We quote briefly from some of them:

"In view of the battle waged against all evils, the battle that is being waged today and will continue to be waged against all forms of wrongdoing, my message to you is the message of rather the exhortation of Moses to Joshua, 'Be strong and of good courage.' We are fighting under a Captain who never loses a battle, and though the odds may seem to be against us for a time, we know that 'God is in the shadow, keeping watch above His own.' Our Divine leader expects us to do our best, and out of our seeming failure will come an experience helping us to build better another time."—Mrs. E. Graves.

"May God's richest blessings attend all the efforts of the W.C.T.U., and may your work in every department prosper."—Miss E. Armstrong.

"Tell all advocates of Government control to come to Vancouver take a look round and enquire into the results of the system. They will then be satisfied to vote for prohibition!"—Mrs. J. A. McPherson.

"I wish your Union all possible prosperity and God's richest blessings on the arduous task of advancing the temperance cause."—Mrs. Markie.

Above all at this time we need to be urged to 'carry on.' With all our energy and ability, and all our combined forces, we shall have to combat a very subtle, powerful and well organized, as well as determined attempt to undermine and upset and bring to naught all that the churches and the W.C.T.U. have worked for all these years. But, they that do know their God shall be strong and do exploits."—Mrs. Irish.

Mrs. Halliburton gave a humorous recitation "A Summer's Vacation," which was much appreciated.

At the close of the program the members enjoyed the hospitality for which Mrs. Trimble's home is noted.

SAD ACCIDENT AT DELBURNE

(Too late for last week)

A shocking accident occurred at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ogden, Delburne, on Wednesday when their son Edward, sixteen years of age, accidentally shot himself.

The family had gone berry picking early in the day, and as the boy did not wish to go, they left him at home to plow. It is thought that while at dinner he saw a hawk flying about, and as the hawk had been getting some of the young turkeys, he took down the gun and went to the shed to see through a small opening, and while leaning on a small table the gun, which was in his right hand, possibly caught on the edge of the table and was discharged, the shot entering behind the right ear, almost blowing off the top of the head.

The terrible shock to the mother and family will hardly be imagined, and the sympathy of the community will go out to them.

Edward was a bright active young fellow, and a general favorite in the district.

Councilor Dr. Gillespie, Delburne, was summoned and with Detective Holmes, of the A.P.P., decided an inquest was unnecessary as the shooting was purely accidental.

The funeral took place on Thursday to the Delburne cemetery, and was largely attended.

NEW STAMP TAX TO START AUGUST 1ST

The first of the changes in the stamp taxes made by the recent budget became operative on August 1. One dollar will then be the maximum tax on cheques, bills of exchange and receipts for money paid to a person by a bank, chargeable against a deposit to his credit; express money orders, travellers' cheques and Post Office orders.

After October 1st postage stamps may not be used in payment of stamp taxes for revenue purposes. Excise stamps only may be used, and these may be bought from any collector of customs or bank.

The receipt tax makes taxable receipts for $10 or upwards on postcards, form letters and ordinary letters.

Field Crop Competitions

The growing of white beans under the auspices of the agricultural societies at six different points in the province will be held this year.

The points holding competitions are Walworth, Camrose, Killam, Lloydminster, High River, Lake Saskatchewan. Inspection of crops for registered seed will commence shortly.

Grow Beans Satisfactorily

The growing of white beans has been successfully carried out on the irrigated lands in the vicinity of Vauxhall, near Medicine Hat, and the variety of bean grown is named "The Great Northern." The success of this crop is interesting in view of the deplorable lack of success in the past. The success of this crop seems to be assured for the irrigated lands.

Fruits Grow Well

Displays at the Lewis and Clark Fair have established the fact that fruit can grow successfully in certain districts of Alberta. Irrigated farmers in the south had displays of cherries, plums and small fruits, as well as apples and northern Apples were grown on irrigated lands. One interesting exhibit was that of the U. P. A. at Vauxhall, which showed five different soil products. Fruit growing has been taken up in several parts of both southern and northern Alberta, with considerable success, and this industry is taking on larger proportions each year.

SHERIFF'S SALE

Province of Alberta, to Wit:

By virtue of a writ of venditioni exponas issued out of the District Court of the District of Red Deer at the suit of A. Sim, Plaintiff, and A. J. French, Defendant, and to me directed against the lands of A. J. French, I have seized and taken into execution the following lands, namely: the North East quarter of Section Seven (7), in Township Forty (40), Range Four (4), West of the Fifth Meridian, in the Province of Alberta.

I am advised that the property is not occupied at the present time; that all of the said land could be placed under cultivation excepting eight or nine acres; a small creek runs through the property, which insures a good water supply; the buildings on the property are of little value; about fifty acres of the property is covered with poplar timber, not thickly but in bunches; the property is fenced with wire, in a fair state of repair; there is a school on the adjoining quarter; this land is located about five miles North East of Leslieville.

I shall expose the said lands for sale on the 22nd day of August, 1923, at the Sheriff's Office, Red Deer, Alberta, at the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon.

E. S. HOGG, Sheriff.

Ten Reasons Why You Should Buy A Stave-Lock Silo

1. Extremely low cost (price less than half the cost of any other high-grade silo on the market).
2. More and better silage.
3. The short staves and patented interlocking joints enable the Stave-Lock Silo to be erected with ease by one man.
4. Stave-Lock Silos can be erected "a piece at a time" thus enabling a farmer with limited means to erect a large silo in three years by building a part each year, and having the use of the silo all the time.
5. Larger capacity at less than half the cost.
6. The tensile strength of a Stave-Lock Silo is far greater than any iron-hoop silo.
7. The freight rate on Stave-Lock Silo material is much lower than for any other silo.
8. No scaffolding is necessary in erecting a Stave-Lock Silo which can be built in the time it takes to put up the scaffolding for any other silo.
9. The Stave-Lock door is air-tight, easily operated, non-sticking, and leak-proof.
10. The octagon shape of Stave-Lock Silos enables a more solid and more rigid construction, and therefore a greater resistance to the elements than any other make of Silo.
